Humour???

- The married couple, both 70 years old, was celebrating their 50th anniversary. That night, God appeared to them in prayer to congratulate them for their faithfulness and grant them each one wish. The wife wanted to travel around the world. Poof! The wife had tickets in her hand for a world cruise. Next, God asked the husband what he wanted. He said, " I wish I had a wife 30 years younger." Poof! The husband was now 100.
- An older nun who was living in a convent next to a construction site noticed the coarse language of the workers and decided to spend some time trying to correct their ways. She decided she would take her lunch, sit with the workers, and talk with them. She put a sandwich in a brown paper bag and walked over to the spot where the men were eating. Sporting a big smile, she walked up to the group and asked: " And do you men believe in heaven and hell?" They shook their heads and looked at each other, very confused. One of the workers looked up into the steelworks and yelled out: " Anybody up there?" One of the workers yelled down, "r Yes ath?, why?" " His wife's here with his lunch. "

Letting Go of False Fear

by Fr. Ron Rolheiser o.m.i.

Recently in a radio interview, I was asked this question: "If you were on your deathbed to leave behind a The question momentarily took me aback. What would I want to leave behind as my last words? Not having time for much reflection, I settled on this. I would want to say: Don't be afraid without fear. Don't be afraid of death. Most of all, do

I'm a cradle Catholic parent that would be by some very the privilege of studying theology in some of the best classrooms in the world. Still it took me fifty years to rid myself of a number of crippling religious fears and to realize that God is the one person of whom you need not be afraid. It's taken me most of my life to believe the word scripture and are the initial words out of the mouth of Jesus whenever he meets someone for the first time after his resurrection: Do not be afraid!

It has been a fifty-year journey for me to believe that, to trust God, and of many other things. As a young boy, I had a particular fear of lightning storms which in my young mind demonstrated how fierce and threatening God could be. Thunder and lightning were portents which warned us, religiously, to be fearful. I nursed the same fears about death, wondering where souls went after they died, sometimes looking at a dark horizon after the sun had set and wondering whether people who had died were out there somewhere, haunted in that endless darkness, still that God was love, but that love also held a fierce, frightening, exacting justice.

Those fears went partially underground during my teenage years. I made my decision to enter religious life at the age of seventeen and have sometimes wondered whether that decision was made freely and not out of false fear. Looking back on it now however, with fifty years a genuine sense of being called, of knowing from the influence of my parents and the Ursuline nuns who catechized me, that one's life is not one's own, that one is called me.

So, what helped me let go of that? This doesn't happen years of bits and pieces conspiring together. It started watching both my mother and father die, I was no longer dead body since these bodies were my mother and father of whom I was not afraid. My fears of God eased gradually every time I tried to meet God with my soul white when you are completely exposed before God; instead you become unafraid. My fears lessened too as I ministered to others and learned what divine compassion should be, as I studied and taught theology, as two cancer diagnoses forced me to contemplate for real my own mortality, and as a number of colleagues, family, and friends modeled how one can live more freely.

Intellectually, a number of persons particularly helped me: John Shea helped me realize that God is not a law to be obeyed, but an infinitely empathic energy that wants us to be happy; Robert Moore helped me to believe that God is still looking on us with delight; Charles Taylor helped me to understand that God wants us to flourish; the bitter anti-religious criticism of atheists like Frederick Nietzsche helped me see where my own concept of God and religion needed a massive purification; and an older brother, a missionary priest, kept unsettling my theology with irreverent questions like, what kind of God would want us to be frightened of him? A lot of bits and pieces conspired together.

What's the important one? I don't know. My daughter careful", but he was referring to our drive home from to leave a message; they can be focused on saying goodbye or simply be inaudible sighs of pain and exhaustion; but sometimes they can be your legacy.

Given the opportunity to leave family and friends a few last words, I think that after I first tried to say a proper goodbye. Don't be afraid of death. Most of all, do
